STATEMENT BY ENGLAND ANGERS H. L. WILSON AND HE ISSUES REPLY

Denies the Policy of Great Britain, France, or Germany Was Affected by the Speech He Delivered at Reception.

EXPRESSION OF VIEWS OF DIPLOMATIC CORPS

Belief that Mr. Lind Will Move Slowly at Mexico City—President Pleased with Tenor of Developments.

Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson precipitated himself into the Mexican situation again yesterday when he issued a statement in answer to that made by the British Foreign Office on Monday in explanation of Great Britain's attitude in recognizing the Huerta administration. The Ambassador was angered by the reference in the British statement to the speech he delivered on behalf of the Diplomatic Corps at Mexico City at a reception to Provisional President Huerta soon after his inauguration.

After an emphatic declaration that the British recognition of Huerta had been merely the recognition of a provisional president pending an election, the statement of the foreign office said:

"The French and German governments also recognized President Huerta after a reception by him of the whole diplomatic party at which a congratulatory speech was made in their behalf by the American Ambassador."

It was the implication which Mr. Wilson saw in this last sentence that the so-called "congratulatory speech" by him had had something to do with the recognition of Huerta by France and Germany and by inference Great Britain that aroused the Ambassador's ire.

In his statement, Mr. Wilson denied absolutely that the policy of any of the three powers named had been in any way affected by his speech, and he disclaimed responsibility for the "congratulatory" tone of the speech itself.

Had Not Recognized Huerta.

The Ambassador declared that not only had he refused to assume the responsibility for drawing the address, which he delivered for the Diplomatic Corps, but that the British and Spanish Ministers. The address appeared, he said, as the expression of the views of the entire corps, none of whose members had at that time recognized Huerta.

The Ambassador twits the Foreign Office with the statement that for more than a month after the reception referred to in the British statement, no recognition of Huerta was accorded. He said that the British and Spanish Ministers. The address appeared, he said, as the expression of the views of the entire corps, none of whose members had at that time recognized Huerta.

The President, it was believed at the time, placed these conditions on the recognition of Ambassador Wilson's resignation for the direct purpose of preventing him from returning to Mexico until the situation was as far as possible. Because Mr. Wilson still ranks as an official of the State Department, it was

DIAZ WILL GO TO JAPAN DESPITE JAPAN'S REFUSAL

GEN. FELIX DIAZ. Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 12.—Gen. Felix Diaz, sent by Huerta as special envoy to Japan, says he will proceed to Japan despite the message from the Japanese government, which says that Diaz will not be received as a Mexican official, but merely as a private individual. Diaz, who is a nephew of the former president of Mexico, is to express the thanks of Mexico to Japan for participation in the Mexican centennial.

BOTANIC GARDEN CHIEF STRICKEN

C. Leslie Reynolds, Protecting Flowers from Boy, Dies Suddenly.

SERVICE OF 39 YEARS

Superintendent Only Recently Achieved Ambition in Succeeding Old Employer, W. R. Smith.

While avoiding a mischievous colored boy for throwing stones, C. Leslie Reynolds, superintendent of the National Botanic Garden, yesterday afternoon dropped dead near the garden gate at Third and B Street—a victim of heart disease.

For some time the superintendent had been annoyed by small colored and Italian boys in the neighborhood throwing stones at the flowers, plants, and the greenhouse windows. Yesterday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock he discovered several colored boys throwing stones and lumps of dirt. One of the lumps struck him on the hand and he started in pursuit of the boy, finally overtaking him.

Starts to Take Boy Home.

Mr. Reynolds started to take the youngster to his home and urge his parents to correct him, being accompanied by Fletcher Warner, a colored employee, who was in the garden at the time. The superintendent was excited greatly. As they walked along he continued to admonish the colored boy, gestulating furiously. They were near the garden gate at Third and B Streets when suddenly Mr. Reynolds dropped to the ground, the impact cutting a slash in his forehead.

Several policemen who were passing hurried into the garden, but it was evident that his life was extinct. The body was taken to the morgue, but later in the evening was removed to the superintendent's residence inside the garden. Rev. Mr. Smith, the necessary certificate.

Mr. Reynolds had been in rather poor health for several months, complaining frequently. He had not suffered noticeably from heart trouble. It is believed that the intense excitement caused by the episode with the mischievous boy weakened his heart and killed him. Upon learning of his husband's death, Mrs. Reynolds grew hysterical and it required several hours to quiet her. She had not been in good health for some time, and the shock has brought about a complete collapse.

Mr. Reynolds was about fifty-five years of age. He was born in Montgomery County, Maryland, near Silver Spring, and spent his boyhood there. For several years he was a Senate page, and as a mere youth entered the service of the Botanic Garden in the capacity of messenger boy. That was about thirty-nine years ago. Since then he had worked himself gradually upward. Following the death of Superintendent William R. Smith last year he was made his successor.

Married an Employee.

About five years ago Mr. Reynolds married Miss Elizabeth Noonan, who had been employed at the Botanic Garden for a number of years as a clerk.

Mr. Reynolds was a Mason and a member of the Florist Club of Washington. Mr. Reynolds is survived by his widow, Mrs. E. W. Reynolds, of New York, a civil engineer, and two brothers, Capt. Edward Reynolds, a senior captain in the Revenue Cutter service, thought to be in Alaskan waters, and Benjamin F. Reynolds, superintendent of the City Cemetery at Norfolk, Va.

Funeral arrangements have not been made, but it is likely that there will be a Masonic rite. Interment probably will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Reynolds was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, and it is expected that representatives of that organization, as well as of the Florist Club, will attend the funeral.

STATE OF NEW YORK NOW HAS TWO GOVERNORS

William Sulzer, Impeached, Refuses to Quit Executive Chamber.

SEPT. 18 SET FOR TRIAL

Situation Unprecedented in United States History—Ousted Governor Eludes Service of Articles.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—At 4:02 this afternoon the blistering articles of impeachment against William Sulzer adopted by the Assembly in the dawn hours of the day were accepted by the Senate. Martin H. Glynn took office as acting governor of New York, and the first gap in Sulzer's twenty-three years of continuous public service came with his automatic suspension from the office of Governor.

Downstairs in the little office back of the legislative chamber, Mr. Sulzer, surrounded by his counsel, insisted that he still was Governor. His trial for "high crimes and misdemeanors," including a charge of grand larceny, is set for September 18 before the Senate and the ten judges of the Court of appeals. He will cheerfully appear for trial, but holds that up to and during his trial he cannot and will not be dislodged from office.

It was learned when the Governor sent for Senator Frawley last evening it was to make a final appeal for peace.

Sulzer Shakes Fist.

"You know, Senator," said the Governor, "that this has gone too far. I don't expect anything of the kind, and I don't believe you did. You must stop it."

Frawley replied that he was sorry, but the thing was out of his hands. Whereupon the Governor, shaking his fist, cried:

"If you impeach me, Jim Frawley, there will be a revolution in this State. The people who elected me will not stand for my removal, and you know it." Frawley insisted that nothing could be done, and the interview closed.

As a consequence of his defiant attitude there will be two executive officers and two Governors, each claiming authority, until a tie is had and the courts are definitely upon record as to what is known as "prime commercial paper." It became apparent in caucus Tuesday that the supporters of "corn tassel currency" were making progress, and the President was so advised. Accordingly, he yesterday gave assurance that at the proper time he would support a bill providing for a system of rural credits.

Not to make assurance of Mr. Sulzer's suspension doubly sure an attempt was made to serve him with the articles of impeachment before he left the building. But he put on his slouch hat and strode down the stairs before his arch enemy, Clark Fawcett, of the Assembly, could serve him.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Gov. Glynn, summoned to the capital after the receiving of the articles, declared that he was acting Governor and henceforth all the State officials, save those still loyal to Sulzer, will look to Glynn for direction.

When Glynn took office Majority Leader Robert F. Wagner, of the Senate, became acting Lieutenant Governor. There will be no change in the pay of any of the officials involved in the proceedings. Mr. Glynn will be in an untroubled position of the executive branch until the courts have passed on his right to stay there, and will receive the full Governor's pay through his suspension and trial.

Glynn Has No Policies.

Being Acting Governor only, Mr. Glynn refrained from making any statement as to future policy. It is known, however, that he will make no great changes until he becomes Governor and that he will not even minor changes will be made without deliberation. Mr. Glynn will have the support of practically all the administration that has surrounded his predecessor.

Fifty Thousand Pieces Of Chewing Gum Stolen From Freight Platform

"Who stole the chewing gum?" This is the question which confronts the police in solving the mystery surrounding the disappearance of five big boxes of gum from the platform of the Merchants' Transfer and Storage Company at the Pennsylvania Railroad freight yard on Fourth and A-Half Streets, Southwest.

The gum, consigned to the Washington Tobacco Company, was delivered by the railroad people to the transfer company. A negro drove up to the platform and said he had come for a case of the chewing gum belonging to the tobacco company. Yesterday another negro came for the four other cases. The gum never has reached its proper destination.

Central Office Detective James Springman has been detailed on the case, and he is searching every negro alley in the city in the hope of picking up a clue as to the thief. He has figured it out that there are in the cases 10,000 packages of gum. With five pieces to the package, there are 50,000 pieces. These five hundred thousand would cover almost five miles. Chewing and pulled out to the fullest extent, they would reach to Richmond, Va., and back.

"I am almost willing to bet," said Griffith tonight, "that Navin accepts my terms."

RURAL CREDITS PLAN FAVORED BY MR. WILSON

But He Does Not Want It Included in Pending Currency Bill.

HOT DEBATE IN CAUCUS

Discussion Over Amendments for Reducing Warehouse Certificates.

While the House Democrats were engaged yesterday in a wordy battle in caucus over the proposed amendments to the administration banking bill authorizing the issue of currency on wheat, corn, and cotton, President Wilson issued a statement announcing that he favored the creation of a system of agricultural credits. However, he adjured his party colleagues not to attempt to put such legislation into the pending banking measure.

The President's statement was designed to put a check on the movement that appears to be growing among Democrats to amend the banking bill as to provide that warehouse certificates issued against wheat, corn, cotton, and other agricultural staples shall be accepted by the Federal Reserve bank as what is known as "prime commercial paper." It became apparent in caucus Tuesday that the supporters of "corn tassel currency" were making progress, and the President was so advised.

Accordingly, he yesterday gave assurance that at the proper time he would support a bill providing for a system of rural credits.

WOMEN TO VOTE TO ENFRANCHISE THEIR SISTERS

Leaders in Suffrage States Believe They Have Balance of Power.

SESSIONS HERE OPENED

Fight to Be Made for Adoption of Constitutional Amendment—Hearing Before Rules Committee Today.

Four million women will cast their next Federal ballots for the enfranchisement of all the women of America.

Leaders among the women voters of the West yesterday met at the Shoreham in their first national council and took the measure of their strength in national politics. They practically decided that they hold the balance of power for future Federal elections, and that this justifies them in expecting from Congress the passage of the constitutional amendment now before it, giving suffrage to all the women of the country.

Delegates to the council believe that the women's vote will hold together as a unit behind the demand for nationwide woman suffrage. Besides the women's vote, they are convinced that a large enough percentage of the men's vote of the ten suffrage States would be cast with them to more than assure the carrying of these States in their interest. This strength will be brought to the attention of the Democratic leaders, with the request for early action on the pending amendment.

During the last session of the council, that of next Friday afternoon, when the sentiment of Senators and Representatives toward the amendment has been thoroughly considered, the women voters will hold a symposium upon the attitude of the national parties toward woman suffrage. Dr. Cora Smith King, of Washington, will open this deliberation.

Retirees as to Plans.

Although members of the council repudiated the plan to make known their plans, it is evident that they will take steps to assure the carrying of the ten suffrage States in 1914 for the party pledging immediate Federal enfranchisement of women. That there will be at least one strong national party in the field in 1914 pledged to equal suffrage, the women are certain. And, if the necessity arises, they are just as certain to use the party to which they throw their strength to secure their power.

In plain words, much plainer than any used by the women delegates to the council, the Democratic party has a position on its hands more vital to the tariff or currency problems than that of woman suffrage. It must either enfranchise the women by Federal amendment, or be forced out of power at the next general elections.

"We are a non-partisan organization," said Dr. Viola M. Cox, president of the Women Voters of Oregon, "and hence are able to work together closely. We believe that Congress should pass our amendment this week, and we believe that we have become a factor in national politics that deserves consideration. We will use our power in the interest of the disenfranchised women of America."

Miss Addams Vice President.

At the opening of the afternoon session at the Shoreham, Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, was elected vice president of the National Council by acclamation. Mrs. Emma Smith DeVoe, president of the council, then asked her to preside. The conclusion of the suffrage situation in the Senate and in the House took up the greater part of the time of this sitting.

Discussion of the attitude of the Senate toward suffrage was opened with a paper on the subject by Miss Jennette Rankin, of Montana. The general situation in the House was summed up by Miss Lucy Burns, vice chairman of the Congressional Union of the N. Y. A. W. A. Little of what was said in these discussions was made public beyond the admission that equal suffrage advocates

KILLING OF CANADIAN PUZZLE TO THE POLICE

New York Sleuths Are Dragging City with Wide Net to Catch Guilty One.

New York, Aug. 12.—Efforts of the police engaged in tracing the murderer of William G. Martin, the wealthy Toronto merchant, whose body was found in a back room of a furnished room house at 62 West Fifty-seventh Street, centered tonight on a search for a young blonde who had called herself a vaudeville actress, and a man named Johnson, who posed as the woman's husband.

This couple up to last Monday night had occupied the room in which Mr. Martin's body was found. It was at first reported on seemingly good authority that he had met his death from stab wounds, but Coroner Winterbottom, after the autopsy at the morgue today, said that death had undoubtedly been due to strangulation.

A statement made by Mrs. Theodore Jones, the landlady of the house, furnished the police with their clew to the Johnsons. Among them also seeking several others, among them a supposed Canadian friend, whom Mr. Martin had told Mrs. Anna Barrett that he was to see on the night on which he was murdered. Mrs. Barrett was a former business associate of the slain man.

It was also learned that the police are looking for a companion of the Johnsons, a man said to be Johnson's brother-in-law. Eight or nine persons are to be included in the dragnet which the police have thrown out in the search for the slayers. A man and his wife named Smith and a Mr. and Mrs. Ross, who occupied rooms in the Jones house, and who were on friendly terms with the Johnsons, are also being sought.

HEADS NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMAN VOTERS

JUDGE CLAYTON LACKS SUPPORT

O'Neal Appointment Meets with Practically No Favor.

MARYLAND CASE SIMILAR

Leaders Have Grave Doubt as to Legality of Forthcoming Primary.

Representative Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, who arrived late last night bearing credentials from Gov. O'Neal of Alabama as Senator-elect, will not be permitted to take the oath of office.

The indications are that if the question is put to a vote in the Senate to test the validity of the appointment of Judge Clayton by Gov. O'Neal, that the Governor's action will be held invalid by an overwhelming majority.

When the credentials are submitted in the Senate, if they are submitted, a motion will be made to refer them to the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, instead of following the usual course and placing them on file. Under such circumstances, Mr. Clayton would not be allowed to take the oath of office, so that the receipt and reference of the credentials probably will be the only proceedings in the case.

House Resignation Necessary.

It was pointed out yesterday that Mr. Clayton had not resigned as a member of the House, and he is quoted in dispatches from Alabama as saying that he would not resign until he was sworn in as Senator. This statement was received with surprise by Senators, who pointed out that Mr. Clayton could not be sworn in as Senator until after he had resigned as a member of the House, even if the credentials were not open to attack.

Yesterday became apparent that there was an overwhelming sentiment on both sides of the Senate chamber against permitting Judge Clayton to take the oath of office. On the Democratic side, Senator Bacon of Georgia, Senator Kern of Indiana were outspoken in the opinion that Gov. O'Neal had no authority to make the appointment. The conclusion was based on the following paragraph from the amendment to the Constitution, proclaimed last February, which changed the method of electing Senators:

"When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies."

Any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election, as the Legislature may direct. The Alabama Legislature has made no provision for filling vacancies in the Senate from that State, nor has it authorized the Governor to make appointments. The Senate leaders promptly declared that the long-covered deeper channel for Atlantic City's inlet.

ATLANTIC CITY MEN WANT DEEPER CHANNEL

Committee of Influential Citizens Will Come to Capital for Conference.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 12.—Another effort is to be made by residents of this city to secure the long-covered deeper channel for Atlantic City's inlet.

A committee composed of Dr. Emory Marvel, Dr. J. B. Thompson, former Senator Edward A. Wilson, former Governor Edward S. Loe, Charles D. White, Hon. Clarence L. Cole, Harvey Thomas, Mayor Hildreth, Joseph Fralinger, and former Assemblyman Carlton Godfrey, will go to Washington for the purpose of having a conference with President Wilson and Secretary of War Garrison concerning the project.

Dr. Marvel, who was one of the committee, which went to Washington eighteen months ago and secured the government appropriation, today said he believed the government had fully decided in favor of the project, and that the only successful way of deepening the inlet, and he did not have any faith that any other scheme would be looked upon with the slightest degree of favor, unless it could be shown beyond the peradventure of a doubt that it was feasible.

And in view of the stand taken by the government engineers, he did not understand how feasibility could be shown to the satisfaction of the engineers. They were committed to plan of dredging and he did not believe they would forsake that for any other scheme.

ATTACK MADE ON CHARACTER OF GIRL IN TRIAL

Miss Warrington Admits She Met Diggs Through Saloon-keeper Friend.

OTHER TRIPS RECOUNTED

Shows that Defendant Had Lied About Newspaper Scandal and Had Frightened Girls.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 12.—Hour after hour today the lawyers in the Diggs case forced pretty little Martha A. Warrington to recount by detail her acquaintance with Diggs and the Reno trip.

They were as merciless as inquisitors. Except when the court stayed their hands, they pressed her on every point. The defense made her say she was introduced to Diggs by a saloon keeper friend, one Monte Austin—introduced under a fictitious name.

They forced her to tell of trips to San Francisco, Stockton, and San Jose with Diggs, Lola Norris, and Cammetti, where their relations and conduct were the same as those at Reno. They had her "mouthing" a man in the Riverside Hotel while Diggs and Cammetti were out renting the bungalow. They placed the wine cup at her lips.

It was made part of her reluctant testimony that she knew Mrs. Diggs, and had been entertained by her at the Diggs flat. There was a letter introduced in which Diggs had addressed her as "Dear Pickles." But if she made but a poor figure, certainly Diggs showed in a mean and contemptible light. It was shown that he had lied about the approaching newspaper disclosures, that had scared the two girls into flight.

Tells of Reno Visit.

When the defense offered to show that Martha Warrington was familiar with the night life of San Francisco, they were not permitted to further smirch her reputation.

When the details of some formal testimony had been cleared away, Attorney Roche took the low spoken young woman through her experience with Diggs in Reno Hotel and bungalow, in this there was nothing new.

It came out that on the advice of Diggs, she and Miss Norris had remained hidden for three days in the Reno house, lest some one should see and know them. On his advice they had not mailed the letters they had written home. After the arrest they had fled for him and had telephoned her father asking that the warrants be withdrawn.

The prosecution showed a letter, written two months after the arrest—a letter from Diggs to the girl, asking her to stand by him to the end. It was in this that he called her "Dear Pickles," and renewed the expression of his affection.

"You have told all about your relations with Diggs," asked Mr. Coghlan, in opening his cross-examination.

"I have."

Was in Diggs' Office.

But from that the cross-examination made it tell of the cross-examination in November last and of a trip to San Francisco in February of this year, where she was registered with Diggs at the Hotel as man and wife, Cammetti and Lola Norris sustaining the same relations.

This trip was extended to San Jose in the Diggs automobile, with a telephone to her to her telephone to account for her absence and the man-and-wife relation again sustained at the New Montgomery Hotel. She freely admitted champagne drinks and debauchery in the office of Diggs. Miss Norris and Cammetti participating.

From the trend of much of the cross-examination it is evident the defendant intends to tell of the cross-examination in November last and of a trip to San Francisco in February of this year, where she was registered with Diggs at the Hotel as man and wife, Cammetti and Lola Norris sustaining the same relations.
